

Important elections happen each year in Pennsylvania. While 2017 does not feature races for U.S. House, U.S. Senate, PA House or PA Senate, there are still some big reasons to head to the polls. Along with local races, Pennsylvanians also will be voting in judicial elections on Tuesday, Nov. 7. These judicial elections play a huge role in the future of our Commonwealth. In the coming years, Pennsylvania Courts will be tasked with looking at issues ranging from legislative redistricting to workers' rights.

JUDICIAL ELECTIONS ARE IMPORTANT

Pennsylvania's judges are elected in partisan elections, and some are required to face retention.

As the legislature creates new laws that affect you, Pennsylvania's new judges will interpret, strike down, or reinforce these laws. Please take the time to get out and vote in these races as they will have a long-lasting effect on the future of Pennsylvania.
